

Amendment to the Legion Handbook

The Concilium has noted that misunderstandings can arise sometimes, regarding the role of the Comitium as shown in the Handbook (Chapter 28:2:2) for example. It is incorrect for a Comitium to regard itself as a Comitium only when officers of related Curiae are present. Another misunderstanding may result in thinking that there cannot be more than one Comitium in a diocese. The Comitium, therefore, considers that some further clarification of the role of the Comitium should be included in the Handbook. The following amendment in the handbook, which does not involve any change the rule, showing the original wording of the Handbook with the additional words of clarification, was approved by the Concilium at its meeting on 19th October 2008.

Amendment to Handbook, Chapter 28:2:2

Where it is found necessary to confer on a Curia, in additions to its own proper functions, certain powers of superintendence over one or several Curiae such higher Curia shall be styled more particularly a Comitium, and each of its meetings is considered to be a Comitium meeting whether or not representatives of the related Curiae are present.,.

The Comitium is not a new council. It continues to act as a Curia in respect of its own area and to govern directly its own praeidia. In addition it supervises one or more Curiae. Elections of officers of these Curiae are subject to ratification by the Comitium as it is the next-highest council.

Each Curia and praesidium directly related to a Comitium shall be entitled to full representation on the latter and, therefore, their officers have the right to vote at elections of officers of the Comitium.

In order to relieve the representatives of a Curia from attendance at all the meetings of the Comitium (which, added to the meetings of their own Curia, might form an undue burden) it would be permissible to deal with the business of that Curia and to require the attendance of its representatives only at every second or third meeting of the Comitium. It is not required that all representatives of all related Curia attend on the same month.

A Comitium shall not ordinarily cover an area larger than a Diocese, but may cover a smaller area. If a diocese has many Curiae or where the Curiae are widely separated, more than one Comitium, perhaps several, may be necessary and desirable. There may be circumstances where, for the purpose of good administration, and with ecclesiastical sanction, a Comitium could be asked to supervise one or more Curiae in another diocese or dioceses.

Note: Amendments are shown in Italics.

Amendment to the Legion Handbook

The Concilium has noted that misunderstandings can arise sometimes, regarding the role of the Comitium as shown in the Handbook (Chapter 28:2:2) for example. It is incorrect for a Comitium to regard itself as a Comitium only when officers of related Curiae are present. Another misunderstanding may result in thinking that there cannot be more than one Comitium in a diocese. The Comitium, therefore, considers that some further clarification of the role of the Comitium should be included in the Handbook. The following amendment in the handbook, which does not involve any change the rule, showing the original wording of the Handbook with the additional words of clarification, was approved by the Concilium at its meeting on 19th October 2008.

Amendment to Handbook, Chapter 28:2:2

Where it is found necessary to confer on a Curia, in additions to its own proper functions, certain powers of superintendence over one or several Curiae such higher Curia shall be styled more particularly a Comitium, and each of its meetings is considered to be a Comitium meeting whether or not representatives of the related Curiae are present.,.

The Comitium is not a new council. It continues to act as a Curia in respect of its own area and to govern directly its own praeidia. In addition it supervises one or more Curiae. Elections of officers of these Curiae are subject to ratification by the Comitium as it is the next-highest council.

Each Curia and praesidium directly related to a Comitium shall be entitled to full representation on the latter and, therefore, their officers have the right to vote at elections of officers of the Comitium.

In order to relieve the representatives of a Curia from attendance at all the meetings of the Comitium (which, added to the meetings of their own Curia, might form an undue burden) it would be permissible to deal with the business of that Curia and to require the attendance of its representatives only at every second or third meeting of the Comitium. It is not required that all representatives of all related Curia attend on the same month.

A Comitium shall not ordinarily cover an area larger than a Diocese, but may cover a smaller area. If a diocese has many Curiae or where the Curiae are widely separated, more than one Comitium, perhaps several, may be necessary and desirable. There may be circumstances where, for the purpose of good administration, and with ecclesiastical sanction, a Comitium could be asked to supervise one or more Curiae in another diocese or dioceses.

Note: Amendments are shown in Italics.